

Dear R. B. Hunt Family,

So far, we have had a great start to school. We are seeing the effects of online learning last spring and have noticed that students are not academically where they need to be at this time of year. That combined with what we refer to as, "the summer slide" have made a noticeable difference with our student's academic abilities. While we realize looking at the whole child's development is critical, we cannot help be concerned.

We are putting our heads together here to get students excited about reading again. We know the more students "practice" reading the better they become at it.

What you can do to help your child:

Set aside a time and place for student to read. (Practice)

Make reading a family routine- students need to READ every night for homework and they conference with teachers on their reading throughout the week.

Check with your child's teacher about reading and homework expectations. Is it an amount of time each night or a number of pages?

Read to your children or take turns reading- even older kids love this.

Limit time and placement of electronics.

Thank you for your support in helping our students to continue to grow and learn.
